

Making C'est ici findable by the clients it already deserves.

The studio has the awards, the projects and the point of view. What it does not have is a website Google can read, a Google profile that competes, or a presence in the AI assistants clients now use to build their shortlist. This is the work that closes that gap, across the three channels that produce enquiries: search, maps and AI.

01 Website and technical foundation

- Rebuild the heading structure across the site so every page states clearly what it is about
- Rewrite every title tag and meta description around the searches that bring qualified enquiries
- Add schema markup: studio, founder, services, projects, awards, location and frequently asked questions
- Make the portfolio index properly crawlable so every project is reachable and counted by Google
- Rewrite project pages around the real venues, locations, materials and scope of each commission
- Add descriptive alt text to portfolio imagery so the work is visible in image search and to screen readers
- Remove duplicate and legacy pages, and redirect anything that carried value
- Compress imagery and resolve the load-speed issues holding the site back on mobile and desktop
- Clean the tracking stack, remove dead tags and add direct contact routes including WhatsApp
- Build the internal linking structure that passes authority from the strongest pages to the ones that sell
- Set up the multilingual structure and language signals so each market version is served to the right country

03 Google Business Profile and local presence

- Correct the primary category and add the secondary categories the studio should appear under
- Write out the full service list with descriptions, so the profile matches what people search for
- Rewrite the business description, fix the address inconsistency, and complete attributes, hours and service areas
- Publish a photo every week as an ongoing activity signal to Google
- Publish project posts on the profile so completed work appears in Maps, not only on the website
- Build and run the review request system: outreach templates, the request flow, follow-ups and reply management
- Seed the questions and answers section so the profile answers objections before the first call
- Align name, address and phone across the site, the profile and every external listing

05 Measurement and reporting

- Set up and clean Search Console and Analytics so the numbers reported are real
- Track enquiries by source, so it is clear which pages and which channel produce the leads
- Track positions against the target keyword set across Dubai, Abu Dhabi and the priority markets

02 Landing pages for high-demand searches

- Discipline pages covering residential, hospitality and F&B, commercial and workplace, retail and brand spaces, and restoration
- Core market pages for Dubai and Abu Dhabi, the two markets that have to produce enquiries first
- Saudi Arabia in English and Arabic, covering Riyadh, Jeddah and the cultural and hospitality destinations
- Spain in Spanish, built around Marbella, the Balearics, Madrid and Barcelona, the least contested opening in Europe
- France in French, covering Paris and the Cote d'Azur, where private residences and holiday homes are searched by city
- London and Miami, positioned for international private clients, developers and property advisors
- A founder page for Monica Arango carrying the credentials, the awards, the press and the creative point of view
- Pages built on the Latin American and Mediterranean aesthetic, the niche nobody else in Dubai is claiming
- Pages targeting transactional searches: luxury apartments, villa renovation, consultation and quote requests
- Copy written for each audience: private clients, developers, hotel and restaurant operators, and the professional network of architects, consultants and suppliers
- Answer content built around the questions clients and AI assistants actually ask about cost, process and selection

04 Authority, press and AI visibility

- Recover links from the publications that already covered the studio and never linked back
- Rebuild the press page so every mention is verifiable and links out
- Create and maintain profiles on the design platforms and directories that AI assistants read
- Extend press and directory presence into the target markets, so the studio is verifiable in Spain, France, the UK and the United States, not only the Gulf
- Build the Milan and Italian supplier presence as brand positioning, and Colombia and Latin America as editorial and cultural relevance rather than search
- Standardise the studio description across the website, LinkedIn, Instagram and Google so the entity is unambiguous
- Disavow the low-quality links currently pointing at the domain

What we need from you

- Editor access to the website and administrator access to the Google Business Profile
- Read access to Google Search Console and Google Analytics, so results are measured and not estimated
- Project information we cannot get from outside: venue names, locations, scope and client permission to publish
- The contact list for the review campaign: past clients, suppliers and collaborators
- One point of contact for approvals, and a monthly meeting to review progress

Terms

Months 1 to 4, build and repair	USD 1,200 / month
Month 5 onward, growth	USD 600 / month
Reporting	Monthly

Separate from the fee: awards, directories, press placements and translation are paid to third parties. We recommend a dedicated budget line for these, approved case by case with invoices. Authority is the single largest gap in the studio's position, and it is the one part of the plan that cannot be produced, only earned or bought.
